Neptune's Inferno: The U.S. Navy at Guadalcanal

by James D. Hornfischer, MBA '98, JD '01
In his latest book, Hornfischer paints striking portraits of U.S. naval commanders and common sailors who fought seven major battles against the Japanese at Guadalcanal in WWII.

Frontier Feminist: Clarina Howard Nichols and the Politics of Motherhood

by Marilyn S. Blackwell and Kristen T. Oertel, PhD '00
Blackwell and Oertel tell the story of Clarina Howard Nichols, one of America's pioneering social reformers. They examine her relationships with other female reformers and male politicians and how women's rights became linked with the abolitionist movement.

The Crash of TWA Flight 260

by Charles M. Williams, PhD '67
Williams was one of few volunteer rescue workers who reached the wreckage of a 1955 TWA flight after it crashed in the New Mexico mountains. The cause was debated for years. Unsatisfied with the results, Williams has reconstructed the events and mystery behind the crash and its investigation.

In Dreams Begin

by Skyler White, MA '94
White uses history and fantasy, Victorian Ireland, and time travel to tell the stories of Laura and Ida and their quest to make love last over time. Readers may recognize real-life Irish poet W.B. Yeats as Laura's love interest.

As I See It: Class Warfare: The Only Resort To Right Wing Doom

by Egberto Willies, BS '83, Life Member
A self-proclaimed ardent Liberal, Willies believes America is at a tipping point between right- and left-wing ideologies. He offers ideas for policy changes that he sees as a solution to the economic hardships plaguing the country.

The New York City Triangle Factory Fire
by Leigh Benin, Rob Linné, BA '89, PhD '98, Adrienne Sosin, and Joel Sosinsky

Through historic images, this book honors the victims of the infamous 1911 Triangle Waist Company factory fire, which killed 146 workers. Until Sept. 11, 2001, the Triangle fire was the deadliest workplace disaster in the history of New York City.
